WANT MONEY TO KILL DOGFISH

Says the Portland Express & Advertiser editorially.

It is not expected that if the state were to grant a $5000 appropriation to be expended in paying a bounty on the dogfish at the rate of two cents per dog, that Maine fishermen will devote themselves exclusively to the pursuit of the pests. Two cents a dog would hardly pay them and $5000 would not last long either. The object of this bounty movement is to induce the fishermen to kill all dogfishes they find on their hand lines and trawls and bring in their catch as two-cent souvenirs, instead of using the hook out of the dogfish's mouth and liberating him to continue his depredations upon the food fishes. Such an action on the part of the fishermen it is believed that a practical start will have been made toward systematic extermination of the dogfishes, and also that this decimation, comparatively small though it may appear, will be decidedly noticeable in the reduced number of these small sharks on the fishing grounds.

It should also be taken into consideration that probably two-thirds of the dogfishes that will be caught and "de-tailed," will be females. It is estimated that each mature female dogfish will add at least 50 dogfish pups annually to the ever increasing hordes along the coast. Therefore, when one female adult is killed it will be seen that each two-cent bounty has really resulted in the death of 51 of the pests. One man who doesn't care particularly what happens to the dogfish or the fishermen either, recently said, "I should think the fishermen, for their own protection, would catch and kill all these dogfishes they can without any bounty."

We might say with equal truth that every real estate owner should undertake a personal campaign against the moth pests. We notice, however, that state aid is invoked in this land fight. The fisherman has his living to make and can hardly spare the time to kill dogfishes for the simple object of extermination any more than he could afford to remain at home and kill flies.

MADE QUICK RUN FROM BROWN'S

Sch. Morning Star Is Only Vessel With Fish at Boston Today.

Both fish marts at Boston closed this noon over the holidays. There was but one arrival, sch. Morning Star, Capt. Harry Ross arriving at the South Boston pier with a 60,000 pound fresh fare.

The Morning Star had a dandy run to market, being just 24 hours from Brown's. Capt. Ross and crew fished up to the minute of leaving, so a good part of her trip was new fish.

Wholesalers quoted $3 a hundred pounds for haddock, $6 for large and $2.50 for market cod, $3 to $6 for hake, $4 for pollock, $1.50 for cusk and 18 cents a pound for fresh halibut.

Boston Arrivals and Receipts.

A FLYING FISH.

A flying fish, a specimen of the trout family, taken from a stream in Hartland, Conn., by Elmer Parsons of River-ton, is attracting attention in the Postoffice there, where it is on exhibition in a long, narrow tank of water. The fish, unless a cover is kept on the tank, takes occasional flights by flattening its large fins like a wing.

TWO HURT ON BEAM TRAWLER

The steam trawler Spray put back to Boston this morning with a broken fare, to secure medical aid for two of her crew who were injured on board a couple of days ago.

They were Peter Reardon and James Denn. Both were standing on deck when a sea broke aboard, knocking one of the men down, while the other was hit by the big basket. Neither received any broken bones, but were badly bruised and shaken up.

Capt. George Dodman will commence Tuesday to fit out the sch. Harmony for the fresh halibut fishery.

Two More Haul Out.

Steamers Dolphin and Medomak have hauled out of the gill net fishery for a while.

CLOSE CALL FOR SCH. FALLON

Returning from a four weeks' bank trip the sch. John J. Fallon arrived at Portland, Sunday with 40,000 pounds of fish, most of her catch having been made on Brown's Bank. Capt. O'Brien reports a rough trip, his vessel narrowly escaping being totally wrecked while making Halifax during a heavy gale accompanied by blinding snow, she piling up on Major's Beach, just outside the port, losing part of her keel besides other damage. After being floated she went on the railway at Halifax, being detained there about 10 days. Most of her catch was cod and haddock and in fine condition.

Halibut Sale.

The halibut fare of sch. Paragon sold to the American Halibut company for 13 cents per pound for white and ten cents for gray.

Halibut at Portland.

Sch. Margaret, Capt. Ernest Engstrom, is in Portland this morning with 20,000 pounds of fresh halibut.

Taking Salt.

Sch. J. J. Flaherty is taking salt for salt trawl banking.

Provincetown Fishing News.

The gasoline schooner which went ashore at the West end this winter was taken off by Frank Raymond and crew Sunday and docked at Jackson Williams wharf.

The hearing to parties interested in the deepening of the waters of Lewis bay was held at the State House Wednesday of last week. It developed that this petition interested many besides the Hyannis people, and was favored all along the Cape shore from Provincetown to Falmouth.

Representative Jerome S. Smith of the third Barnstable district, Captain John F. Silva of the Provincetown fishing fleet that find a harbor here during the fishing season, and Captain Charles Harty and James M. Burke of the Provincetown board of trade were present, and spoke favorably on the petition. No opposition developed and the committee expect to view the territory in March.

Think Lunenburg Lost.

The sch. W. Cortada, owned at Lunenburg, N. S., has been posted as lost with all on board. Her crew consisted of Capt. Edwin Bachman and seven men. The Cortada is 42 days out on a voyage from Lunenburg to Ponce, P. R., with a cargo of fish and lumber. Her owners, Zwicker & Co., Limited, believe she was lost in the gale of Jan. 13, two days after she left port. Lunenburg has lost two vessels this winter, the Wilfred M. having fallen prey to the German converted cruiser Kronprinz Wilhelm on a voyage to Bahia recently and the Fleetly having been abandoned at sea. In neither case, however, was there loss of life.

Fitting Sch. Elk.

Capt. Patrick Murphy, one of the best known skippers sailing out of this port will now fit sch. Elk for the fresh haddock fishery and later in the season will go shacking.

NO BIG DEMAND FULTON MARKET

The week, marking the opening of the Lenten season, did not cause a demand for salt water fish as was expected, says the Fishing Gazette. During the first two days there was a very light demand for salt on Wednesday the market showed improvement, and all varieties of moved much faster than during preceding days. On Thursday and Friday for which there was in the market the demand was good, particularly as regards frozen fish. Earlier in the week market was against the frozen product.

As is usually the case at this time of year, there was a good demand for frozen herring. The stock notwithstanding large prices were high, selling at $8 to $9 per barrel.

There was a good deal of activity in the market this week, eastern boats caught very large quantities and considerable shipments made to this market, stock selling 1 1-2 to 2 cents per pound.

There was a great deal of activity in the market, and it was very low price. Sales were made at 1 1-2 to 3 1-2 cents, with the exception Monday, when a few quotations of cents were made.

With the exception of Saturday Monday, hake brought 3 to 4 cents per pound.

Halibut—Western whitefish, 9 to 11 cents each day with the exception of Saturday, when sales made at 7 to 8 cents. It was week's fish that sold at that price. Eastern white halibut was quoted 18 cents, and 12 cents for gray.

Both steak and market cod brought little money on any day. Steak for the week was quoted at 5 to 10 cents and market fish at 2 1-2 cents.

AS NEW YORK SEES SALT FISH

Concerning the salt fish market the Fishing Gazette says:

One New York authority says: "The New York market is pessimistic note, which is not in accord with several others. He says: 'The Lenten demand has been disappointing to merchants. Buying continues of a hand-to-mouth order and the volume of business from day to day falls considerably below the seasonal average. However, there is no danger shown by sellers to force goods on an ancient market and prices are steadily up to the level of quotations.'

"I note the report that the market of the West Indies have processed two-thirds of the salt fish this year, ordinarily up to this time," says the executive of a New York house last week. "I guess that we are sending fish to the right places then. We have sent five carloads to the West Indies in one lick lately."
